BOY STOLEN IN ENGLAND FOUND HERE CLUBWOMAN HURT IN ROW AT WALDORF

Little John Whitnear Recovered by Brother After Four Years' Search. HIS ABDUCTOR GRIEVES. Disconsolate Because Lad to Whom He Was Devoted Is Taken Away.

After being lost from his parents for four years John William Whitnear, a nine-year-old English boy, was found today at the home of Henry Ross, alias Henry Engle, at No. 31 State street, Newark. The boy's brother, William, who came from England to claim him, says Ross kidnapped the youngster. Ross at first declared the little fellow was his own son. According to the statement of William H. Whitnear, the older brother, who reached America yesterday, Ross formerly lived in Sheffield, where the Whitnears live. He was a great friend of the family. Frequently he took the little fellow, to whom he was devotedly attached, out with him on pleasure trips. On Oct. 17, 1904, he started with little William ostensibly on a fishing excursion. They vanished utterly. Ever since then the Whitnears have been trying to trace the missing child. They never got a trace until a friend of the family, visiting a sister of Ross's one day early last December, saw on her writing desk a stamped, unmailed letter addressed to "Henry Engle," in Newark. For some reason the Whitnears suspected that Engle might be the disappearing Ross. Through Scotland Yard, Fred Anderson, superintendent of the Sheffield police, asked the Newark authorities to investigate. As a result of the inquiries which Captain Carroll and Detective Foss, of the Newark force, made, William Whitnear was sent here to make identification. Although his brother had grown from a little toddler to a lusty youngster in knickerbockers, William, who is twenty-one years old, recognized him as his younger brother John. Although he had almost forgotten his home, the younger boy made no objection to being parted from Ross. In the house where Ross and the boy had two furnished rooms they passed for father and son. Ross worked at his trade as an iron moulder in a mill in Newark, giving practically all of his spare time to the company of the lad, to whom he seemed devoted. Ross was not arrested, nor will any attempt be made to extradite him to England as the Whitnears family declined to pay the expense of taking him back to be tried for abduction. The two brothers will sail next Wednesday, and in the mean while the Newark police expect to keep a close watch upon the younger boy, as Ross seemed half despondent at the prospect of losing the lad.

New Haven Road Dividend. NEW HAVEN, March 13.—The usual quarterly dividend of $2 per share was declared by the directors of the New York New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company at their regular monthly meeting held in New York City today.

EVERY MARRIAGE TIE A LOVERS' KNOT. At last the secret has been solved. Divorces are to be relegated to the darksome shelves of curio cabinets, business failures will be discussed as incidents to "times gone by," and, in short, the millennium of harmony between man and wife, business partners, &c., is at hand. This is a sweeping statement, but if you have any doubt at all about its accuracy just read the astonishing article to be printed in to-morrow's Sunday World, in which no less a personage than Mrs. Aso-North Cochran, high priestess of the "Cryptogram" cult, will essay to show that happiness and prosperity are mere matters of names of persons and dates of events. This may seem too strange to be true. But you may not think so after reading what this great student of the subject will have to say. When you pass your newdealer to-night just say to him: "Please be sure and save me a copy of to-morrow's Sunday World." That's the SURE way of getting New York's greatest newspaper.

AUTOIST LA CROIX IN FOUR COURTS

Answers Charges Following His Ride in Endurance Run to Boston. BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 13.—Paul La Croix, the New York automobile driver who is said to have been responsible for a runaway accident in which A. W. Wallace was killed in Fairfield Thursday, appeared in court in this city, Stratford, Fairfield and New Haven today. In the local police court he was charged with defacing the American flag. His case was continued until Monday under bonds of $500. In Stratford the charges of reckless driving and refusing to stop for an officer were preferred against him. Justice Peck nolleed the charges upon payment of costs, as La Croix said he did not see the sheriff's badge and did not know the man was an officer. In New Haven the proceedings were simply to turn La Croix over to a Bridgeport officer, as agreed to when the automobilist was arrested Thursday, on arriving here in the New York to Boston endurance run.

WAR ON BLACK HAND IN ALL AMERICA FOR MURDER OF PETROSINO

New York Detective Shot Down in Palermo, Italy, but Work in Which He Lost Life Will Be Pushed in All Cities.

WARNED MCKINLEY THAT ANARCHISTS PLANNED DEATH

Hit by Four Bullets, He Fires at Assailants As He Falls—Had Long Expected Criminals to "Get Him," But Stuck to His Duty.

Petrosino Died a Martyr, Says United States Consul Palermo, Italy. To Bingham, New York: Petrosino shot, instantly killed, in the heart of the city this evening. Assassin unknown. Dies a martyr. BISHOP, Consul.

PALERMO, Sicily, March 13.—Joseph Petrosino, the celebrated New York lieutenant of detectives, who in vain warned President McKinley of the plot to assassinate him, was shot to death in a crowded tramway station in this city last night.

The killing was done by members of the Sicilian Black Hand organization. Petrosino died fighting, firing one shot at his assassins before four bullets had been poured into his body, one penetrating his heart.

The detective was on the edge of a crowd when he was suddenly surrounded and instantly shot. The throng in the station scattered as the shooting began, and before the police arrived the murderers had escaped in the confusion.

The body of the New York detective lay on the station platform when the police arrived, his revolver still in his hand and one cartridge exploded.

Tedda Roosevelt Is Congress, Says Would-Be Citizen Another Declares Thomas Jefferson Makes Laws of the Country. The police immediately identified the dead man as Petrosino. There were papers in his pockets showing he had been in communication with the local police in connection with the arrest of many members of the Black Hand organization. The local police have given out a statement to the effect that the assassins are Black Handers who had prepared an ambush for Petrosino. Regret is expressed that Petrosino had let it be known that he intended to return to the United States in a few days.

The killing of Petrosino has caused a country-wide order from the police of all cities to dragnet for Black Hand miscreants. Immediately Police Headquarters received a cable message from the detective's death inspector McCaffery telegraphed to the chiefs of police throughout the United States requesting them to round up known criminals in their little Italy, just as he began to do this afternoon by sending out a big force of men in this city with orders to cordon every Black Hand suspect in Greater New York.

This means the beginning of a national campaign against the Black Hand, the greatest movement of the kind that has ever taken place in America. The Commissioner received the first official news of Petrosino's assassination in a message from United States Consul Bishop at Palermo, saying he had died a martyr.

Before sailing for Italy early last month, Petrosino received warnings from many sources. Lieut. Vachris warned him that a trap might be laid for him by Black Hand assassins. Petrosino laughed aside these warnings, though he confessed to a few relatives and friends that they (his Black Hand enemies) might get him some day.

Long a Marked Man. Italian residents of this city who were interested in Petrosino's campaigns against the Black Hand in New York blamed the Police Commissioner to-day for allowing it to become known that
